

LONG TERM OBJECTIVE

The Coronation Global Houseview Strategy is a clean slate fully discretionary balanced portfolio, which represents our best investment view for a balanced portfolio in all major asset classes – equities, property, bonds, cash and international. The Strategy's objective is to outperform the median return of its peer group or composite benchmark over meaningful period (defined as at least 5 years). The Strategy is managed in accordance with the limits of Regulation 28 of the Pension Funds Act.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Coronation is a long-term, valuation-driven investment house. Our aim is to identify mispriced assets trading at discounts to their long-term underlying value (fair value) through extensive proprietary research. The Portfolio is constructed on a clean-slate basis based on the relative risk-adjusted upside to fair value of each underlying asset. The Portfolio is constructed with no reference to a benchmark. We do not equate risk with tracking error, or divergence from a benchmark, but rather with the probability of a permanent loss of capital.

REVIEW FOR THE QUARTER

The Strategy had another good quarter and continued to deliver double digit returns ahead of the benchmark for the 12-month period. Both asset allocation and security selection contributed to the performance. The Strategy has also performed well over more meaningful periods.

Markets continue to hit record highs despite interest rate cuts being pushed further out. The MSCI All Country World Index returned 8% for Q1-24 after rising 22% (in USD) in 2023. US growth has remained resilient thus far, shrugging off concerns that rapid rate rises would induce a recession. Despite elevated market levels, there remains a big value dispersion, both regionally and even within markets. The 10 largest US stocks now comprise more than a third of the S&P 500 Index's total market capitalisation. While we have marginally trimmed global equity exposure to reflect higher market levels, we believe conditions remain ripe for good stock picking opportunities given these divergences. China is struggling to restore growth to its prior pace in the face of high debt levels, a weak property market, and a demographic headwind. Notwithstanding the risks of investing in China, we believe a holding in the Strategy is warranted, given the very low prices at which many high-quality businesses trade.

Geopolitical tensions remain heightened with the ongoing Russian shelling of Ukraine, a tenuous US-China relationship, and the risk of broader Middle East contagion. Half of the world's population goes to the polls in 2024 (including SA during Q2 and the US later in the year). The US outcome could have major ramifications for its allies. Nations such as Australia and Germany are already increasing their military spending. Against this backdrop, we have seen rising prices for a traditional safe haven like gold (+8%) and in oil (+14%). (Both figures are for the quarter in USD.)

Having finished Q4-23 strongly (+8%), the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate Bond Index (USD) declined -2% for the quarter. The Strategy has no exposure to developed market sovereign bonds, given our view that yields offer insufficient compensation for heavily indebted sovereign balance sheets. However, the Strategy has a sizeable holding in offshore credit bonds, which we topped up during the quarter. These bonds trade on attractive, high single-digit US dollar yields while offering diversified exposure across multiple geographies and sectors. This presents a compelling alternative to the risks inherent in South African (SA) government bonds and the very narrow credit spreads in our domestic credit market. Given the compelling alternatives, we continue to make full use of the Strategy's offshore capacity.

The SA economic outlook remains constrained. The state of infrastructure continues to slide after decades of underinvestment and mismanagement. Growing water shortages warn of a pending crisis. The poor performance of port and rail assets is further undermining the competitiveness of important export sectors like mining. In short, the much-anticipated relief from lower levels of loadshedding in 2024 has been overshadowed by ongoing decay elsewhere. Elections in May 2024 bring further uncertainty as to the extent of support for the ruling party and what a potential coalition government could look like. Our base case remains a low-growth environment with ongoing infrastructure challenges.

The FTSE/JSE All Bond Index declined -2% for the quarter. While the finance minister delivered a good-enough looking budget, we fear this was supported by over-optimistic assumptions on both revenues and cost containment. In this low-growth environment, government revenues remain under pressure while it is also struggling to reign in expenditure.

A drawdown of SA's gold and foreign reserves account will deliver near-term benefits but does not change a deteriorating trajectory. Given the longer-term risks, the Strategy is underweight in government bonds. A reasonable portion of the fixed income allocation is in inflation-linked bonds (ILBs). We believe forgoing some nominal (fixed) yield is justified for the protection offered by ILBs in the case of higher inflation. This scenario is easy to sketch, given rising production costs, fiscal challenges, and a weak currency. The currency weakened by -2% against the USD for the quarter (-5% over 12 months). This further erodes the relative returns of the domestic asset classes when compared to the global alternatives.

The local market has been weak, with the FTSE/JSE Capped Shareholder Weighted Index returning -2% for the quarter and 3% for the year. Pleasingly, the Strategy was able to supplement low market returns in this period with strong alpha over the quarter and year, respectively. The Strategy favours SA equities within the domestic asset classes, given the high offshore exposure of many JSE-listed companies and attractive return prospects. Strategy holdings include global stocks listed on the JSE and selected resources and domestic stocks. Domestic stocks offer good opportunities for stock picking, but avoiding value traps is critical. The gap between winning and losing domestic businesses is widening. Winning businesses are investing in their franchises and can grow their top lines above costs. We have a strong preference for the winners and believe that perceived value in many of the weaker, low PE (price-to-earnings) businesses will prove to be illusory. This has been extremely stark in a sector like food retail.

Investor concerns about the SA outlook were reflected in the weak performance of the financial sector with its heavy domestic exposure. The Financials Index declined -8% for the quarter (still +12% over 12 months) as banks and insurers came under pressure. For the banks, low economic growth is subduing advances growth across both the corporate and retail sector while credit losses remain elevated. We believe the winning banks merit a position within the Strategy as their ability to grow real earnings over the medium term should deliver good returns. The Strategy has a position in both FirstRand and Capitec.

The resource sector declined -2% for the quarter (and is down -9% over 12 months). The Strategy holds an underweight position in resources, given early profit-taking across most of the sector (especially diversified and PGM miners). Performances within the sector varied widely, with the gold companies meaningfully outperforming PGM shares, diversified miners, and Sasol. The Strategy has benefited from low holdings across the underperforming sectors. The gold price has strengthened in the face of heightened geopolitical uncertainty and ongoing polarisation. Gold equities rose to reflect the higher gold spot prices. The Strategy's underweight position detracted from performance. We do not believe current gold equity valuations offer sufficient margin of safety to increase our holding.

The Industrials Index rose 1% for the quarter (+3% over 12 months). The Strategy's core holdings include many of the global stocks listed in SA: Naspers, Richemont, Aspen, Bidcorp, British American Tobacco, and Anheuser-Busch InBev. We saw a step change in the number of domestic businesses delivering disappointing earnings as weaker revenue growth and ongoing brutal cost pressures eroded operating profits. We continue to reassess our domestic holdings and cull those that are not well-positioned to withstand the challenging domestic environment. We have been pleased to see the strong volume growth of a business like ADvTECH that has consistently invested in the value of its private education offering, constraining fee increases at or below inflation while managing costs appropriately. Dis-Chem, too, should continue to grow strongly, fuelled by store rollout and market share gains from independents. In Transaction Capital, the collapse of SA Taxi and a sharp share price correction allowed Coronation to increase our holding, thereby increasing exposure to WeBuyCars (WBC). We believe WBC is a strong franchise with good medium-term growth prospects. It offers customers convenience, a trusted partner in buying/selling their vehicle, and fair prices. This should enable it to continue gaining market share from the fragmented independent dealers in the used car market.

While the medium-term outlook for the property sector remains constrained, double-digit dividend yields have allowed us to add selected exposure through a few key stock picks.

Given the constrained domestic environment, we have taken full advantage of the Strategy's offshore capacity. A meaningful allocation to global equities and global credits should enhance the risk-adjusted returns of the Strategy. While global equities have benefited from rising markets, we believe there remain considerable stock picking opportunities given the narrow market returns. These offshore holdings are supplemented by domestic assets; predominantly SA equities, which is our favoured domestic asset class. We believe that the Strategy should continue to deliver attractive returns over the medium to longer term.
